SITE:	Torrey Pines South Course San Diego, California
VENUE:	The Torrey Pines Golf Courses were envisioned by legendary golf course architect William P. Bell to be wind-and sea-swept golf courses that would afford golfers both rugged play and breathtaking surroundings. His son William F. Bell ensured the completion of the North and South Courses which opened in 1957. Both courses play host annually to the Buick Invitational and the Junior World Championship. The South Course will undoubtedly test the shot-making skills of the world's best with tight fairways and lush rough, as well as trees, bunkers and sand. While walking Torrey Pines' picturesque coastal bluffs, tournament patrons will enjoy breathtaking views of the Pacific Ocean's majestic coastline and natural canyons. In 2001, celebrated golf course designer Rees Jones was given the task of remodeling the South Course, an endeavor that has been met with almost universal acclaim. The Torrey Pines South Course hosted the 2008 US Open where Tiger Woods claimed one of his most memorable victories.
